Course Overview

Government freight represents both a tremendous opportunity — and a tremendous responsibility. Moving Government Freight is designed to prepare brokers, carriers, and logistics professionals to succeed in the highly regulated world of transporting freight for the Department of Defense (DoD), the General Services Administration (GSA), and other federal agencies.

This course walks learners through the full government freight lifecycle: determining if this market fits their business, registering properly, navigating bidding platforms, managing audits, troubleshooting operational challenges, and operating ethically in federal transportation environments. By mastering these skills, participants open new revenue streams, build trusted government partnerships, and strengthen their long-term market position

What You'll Learn

After completing this course, you will be able to:

- Explain how government freight differs from commercial freight — including compliance, performance, and documentation expectations
- Understand the federal freight landscape across DoD, GSA, and civilian agencies
- Complete required registrations and system access for DoD and GSA freight (including GFM, ATR, TPI, and Syncada)
- Navigate government bidding platforms and performance standards
- Prepare for pre-payment and post-payment audits and manage documentation requirements
- Identify and resolve common operational challenges at military bases and government facilities
- Manage accessorial charges correctly and avoid costly billing errors
- Operate ethically and transparently while building long-term trust with Transportation Officers and government stakeholders

Competencies You'll Build

This course supports the development of core professional competencies, including:

- Operational Readiness & Risk Awareness
- Applied Industry Knowledge
- Decision-Making Under Constraints
- Customer Communication & Expectation Management
- Problem Recognition and Resolution

Who Should Take This Course?

- Brokers exploring DoD or GSA freight opportunities
- Operations professionals responsible for government shipments
- Sales teams advising customers on federal transportation options
- Companies seeking to diversify into government freight markets
- Anyone responsible for compliance, billing, or audit readiness on government loads

Whether you're evaluating government freight for the first time or looking to professionalize an existing operation, this course provides the practical framework needed to succeed

Why It Matters

Government freight is not a shortcut to easy profits. It demands precision, accountability, and consistency — from registration and bidding to delivery performance and billing.

Mistakes can result in service failure codes, audit clawbacks, suspended bidding privileges, or permanent disqualification from federal work. Brokers who complete Moving Government Freight gain the tools to avoid these pitfalls, operate with confidence inside DoD and GSA systems, and build reputations as reliable, ethical partners. By understanding compliance requirements, mastering bidding platforms, preparing for audits, and handling real-world operational challenges, learners position themselves to grow sustainably in one of transportation's most demanding — and rewarding — markets.
